Finding a Rhythm that Works... and Rests

Before moving to Richmond Hill a year and a half ago, I planned a retreat with Jim Donovan, founding member and lead percussionist with the multi-platinum band Rusted Root. Jim regularly leads drumming workshops to enhance wellness and social connection. We entitled the retreat, The Wisdom of Rhythm, drawing inspiration from an Irish blessing by poet and priest, John O’Donohue, who wrote that there are many indications that “we have fallen out of rhythm with life.” It’s easy to do.

Rhythm is at the heart of life at Richmond Hill. We talk about it a lot. Even more, we strive to live it. Practically speaking, it involves praying the Hours morning, noon, and night, seven days a week. When guests come into the house it’s one of the first things we tell them, “We invite you to participate in our rhythm of life while you are here.” It means we’ll be getting up early in the morning to pray, that we’ll stop what we’re doing at noon and 6 PM, again to pray, and that we’ll share a common meal together in the refectory when we’re through. It means there will be popcorn and juice in the refectory at 9:30 and that the gates will close at 10. And it means so much more.

On the southeast corner of the Richmond Hill facility there is an inverse sundial. It faces south and, therefore, on any clear day is exposed to the sun as it shines over metropolitan Richmond. It marks the passage of time and serves as a reminder that the hours we track are not our own, but belong to the maker of heaven and earth. As the psalmist says, “You created the day and the night, O God; you set the sun and the moon in their places...you made summer and winter” (Psalm 74:16-17). There is a natural, God-ordained rhythm to things.

We need time and space in which we can distance ourselves enough to see what God is doing.

It’s easy, even at Richmond Hill, to find our selves out of sync with that natural rhythm. The daily prayers call us back again and again, but busyness can pervade even the most intentional of communities. It seems there is always more to be done and, of course, the work of healing metropolitan Richmond never ends. To be in it for the long haul, though, requires that we find a rhythm that is sustainable.

St. Benedict laid out an ordered life in his classic rule that he believed followed a divine pattern. The pace of the day, which varied seasonally depending on the amount of sunlight available, determined when the faithful would pray or work or recreate or eat or sleep, etc. Balancing those things, he said, was key. In a phrase often quoted, St. Benedict reminds us even now that discipline has its limits. When it comes to the formation of a school devoted to the service of the Lord, which Richmond Hill hopes to resemble, it’s necessary to demand “nothing harsh or burdensome” (RB, Prologue).

Finding a healthy rhythm of work and rest so the community can function with energy and purpose is critical. It is possible to live in responsive obedience to the pattern God designed for us. It’s why Sabbath is so important in the rhythmic scheme. Pausing to rest is as important rhythmically as the beat itself. There was a reason God rested on the seventh day and asked us to do the same. It enables our lives to find their meaning in something greater than ourselves again and again. Sabbath helps us remember that only God is god and that there is nothing we do or can do to make God love us more. Sabbath creates a marker for ourselves so, if we are lost, we can find our way back to our center.

For some time, 4 PM on Sunday to 4 PM on Monday has been Sabbath at Richmond Hill. While good in theory our practice recently has been less consistent. We’ve experienced severe program creep with... continues on page 2

Mondays being committed to more and more things. In addition to evening worship and a common meal, Monday nights have also included Taize songs and prayer, monthly council meetings, public lectures, healing prayer services, and retreats. As a result, the need to prepare during the day on Monday for Monday nights has increased and our Sabbath observance has declined.

Eugene Peterson reminds us that Sabbath is critical. He says we desperately need “uncluttered time and space in which we can distance ourselves from our own activities enough to see what God is doing.” We have to be intentional for that to happen. Scripture demands it. I dare say life depends on it.

In response, last winter the residential community began to discern what it might look like to reclaim Sabbath and create a healthier communal rhythm. We landed on a plan to move Monday evening’s worship and meal to Tuesday, providing a few more hours of rest and some additional time for residential community building and formation. We’ll take turns preparing dinner for one another, too, sitting down to a “family meal” together on Monday evening. I remember as a boy my mother saying no, on occasion, to friends coming over for dinner because we needed to have at least one meal a week with just the immediate family. Makes sense to me now.

Moving the Community Worship Service to Tuesday won’t happen until January of next year, but we hope that you will join us in preparing for the change. We’ve already begun to move the extra Monday activities to other days and evenings of the week. Honoring Sabbath by maintaining a rhythm that works…and rests…is important for all of us. Sometimes we need to step back in order to move ahead. Keeping rhythm within God’s time is both faithful and wise.

A Call to Action

Pursue Shalom Now: Our Clarion Call, the theme of our upcoming Clergy Convocation, I wonder what a godly response to such a call might mean in our own time.

Such pondering calls for a turn to the gospel message lived and taught by Jesus. Ched Meyers, in Binding the Strong Man, writes that the Jesus of Mark’s story is called to action out of a quest to empower and motivate the oppressed people of Judea. According to Meyers, Mark shows how Jesus 1) renews and re-appropriates old cultural symbols and stories, 2) encourages people to imagine (even while he demonstrates) a fully just and inclusive community of God, and 3) engages in a war of myths.

Jesus chose to go to the river’s edge, outside the city of Jerusalem, to find answers. Being with the people he sought to empower, I imagine he spent time listening to their stories, identifying their needs, and discerning their requests. Perhaps, he gained a sense of how they expressed empathy for one another and encouraged one another. They may have been instrumental in helping him believe that a beloved community was indeed possible.

According to the gospel message, a call to action would not be limited to the oppressed or those who reside in one particular part of town. Those who may have been living comfortable lives would have been called to respond as well. Their social status begs the question: How likely would they have been to go among the oppressed, or listen to charismatic desert men like Jesus or John the Baptist preach about their need to repent?

It was not so much Mark, but Luke who explicitly addresses the response of those who tended to live comfortably. “… the people asked him, ‘What then should we do? … Even tax collectors came … and Soldiers asked,…” (Luke 3:10-11). Like the twelve called to follow Jesus, many called were employed, property owners, and had families to consider. They were not excused from responding.

Ultimately, the call to action for all of us is a call to walk with Jesus in his quest to reappropriate old cultural symbols and stories, to imagine a fully just and inclusive community and to confront the myths of our own age. As ordinary people, listening through the gospel message, we are given hints of the attachments and the thought patterns that are common stumbling blocks to responding openly and honestly to a call to action. The gospel message also offers a place to go for further clarity and empowerment to go forth.

UPDATE

October 2017
Community Worship Service Moving to Tuesdays

Beginning in January 2018, our weekly Community Worship Service will move from Monday to Tuesday evenings. This change will provide our residents with a few additional hours of Sabbath rest and needed time together as “a family.” The shift will happen on Tuesday, January 2. The service will continue to be held in the chapel at the same time as before, 5:30 PM, and be followed by a community meal in our refectory. We hope the change will not be an inconvenience and that you will plan to join us then as now, as we continue to work and pray for the healing of metropolitan Richmond.

Community News

Armstrong Leadership Program’s response to the recent rise in community violence.

Armstrong Leadership Program’s mission is to challenge, develop, stimulate and grow student leaders physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually. To ensure students acquire skills in the areas of Personal Development, Leadership Training, Mentoring, Post Graduate Preparation and Cultural Exposure in an effort to prepare students for success during and after high school.

Recently we had the opportunity to attend the Youth Violence Prevention Focus Group held at Six Points Innovation Center. One student said, “ALP welcomes our opinions and make us feel important.” He was compelled to share his thoughts about ALP’s impact.

“If you are reading this, believe in the Armstrong Leadership Program. Believe in the people that are here. ALP is a monument that was built to stand tall, empowered by God to overcome any obstacle or situation that comes in our path. That’s why we are here to be in the community trying to make a difference. We want to make the world a better place.

Every day people are killed through gun violence, through beatings on the street. ALP gives us an opportunity to not let those kinds of negative influences dictate our path. I dictate my own path! We don’t let those impulses lead to doing something bad. I know for many it may seem hard in the moment, but it will get easier as we work through it.

From an outside viewpoint, Armstrong Leadership Program may seem to be nothing but an excuse to hangout with friends and get free food, but in reality it is much more than that. Leadership is a vital part of my life: ALP is a program where there is no judgment or prejudice towards anyone. You will discover who you are as a person. I can open up about my life and receive helpful comments and advice from my peers. It is a place to meet new people that go to my school. That alone is amazing; it makes me realize how connected we are even in a school. ALP also provides an opportunity to network with people from other places in our community like Capital One, Travelers, and so much more. ALP takes us on college tours; as a senior that really makes me realize how many opportunities are available. Most importantly, ALP is a program that has helped me break out of my shell and exposed me to the real world and empowers me to be the productive young man I am today.”

PRAYING WITH THE SONGS OF TAIZÉ
Jim Bennett, Leader
7:30 p.m. first Monday of each month
Taizé worship is contemplative and meditative in character, using short songs, repeated again and again in a candlelit chapel. The songs express a basic reality of faith, quickly grasped by the mind. The hope is this reality will gradually penetrate one’s whole being; thus the meditative singing becomes a way of listening to God. Our practice of Taizé includes singing, prayer for Metropolitan Richmond, and a period of silence. Jim Bennett, a skilled musician, leads this time of worship with a variety of instruments.

SOAKING PRAYER SERVICE

1st Thursdays at 10:00 a.m. and 3rd Mondays at 7:30 p.m.
Those struggling with illness have benefitted from being “soaked in prayer” over periods of time. Prayer ministers are available to pray with those desiring emotional, spiritual, or physical healing. Participants are invited to find a comfortable place, sit, relax, and receive prayer. Participants may also come and go during the service.

GENERATIONAL HEALING SERVICE
5th Mondays at 7:30 p.m.
Rev. Dr. Paula O. Parker, Leader
Once a quarter, Richmond Hill offers a service for Generational Healing. This is an opportunity to invite God’s healing into your family, including generations that have gone before, as well as generations that will come after you. Participants are encouraged to bring the blessings as well as the pains and traumas of their ancestry written on a piece of paper (not to be shared). However, careful preparation of your personal genogram will help you pray more specifically for your family members.

For those who might find it helpful, 2-hour preparation sessions will be facilitated by Rev. Parker on the following Tuesdays during 2017: May 16th, July 25th and Oct 17th. For more information, call DeBorah Cannady at 783-7903.

Meet Vicky Bethel, the new Micah Coordinator

This year’s Micah Fall Kickoff was a resounding success, as over 100 volunteers, school staff/administrators, and faith community representatives came together at First Presbyterian Church Richmond to sing, celebrate, be inspired, and prepare for a new year of service in Richmond’s public elementary schools. The focus was on George Mason Elementary School and the successes achieved there over the past year. Participants heard powerful, positive messages from a number of speakers, including Rose Ferguson, Principal of George Mason, and Tommy Krantz, Interim Superintendent of Richmond Public Schools.

Following the program, attendees met in breakout sessions, with three modules offered: New Mentor Training, Trauma Informed Care, and Reading Instruction. The workshops were well-attended and well-received.

The morning concluded with a delicious and filling box luncheon, as returning volunteers and newcomers became acquainted and reacquainted, and shared their enthusiasm with one another.

Thank you to the Richmond Public Schools, First Presbyterian Church, Virginia Mentoring Partnership, Child Savers, Communities in Schools, and Cuisine a la Carte for coming together to make this a great Kickoff. A special thank you goes to Mary Hetzel, Tassie Madden, and all of those who worked so hard to make this event happen!

Rev. Vicky Bethel, an ordained Presbyterian minister who last served as a Chaplain at the University of Virginia Hospital, moved into Richmond Hill as a resident this September. Vicky is now a member of the Urban Service Corps and is acting as the Micah Coordinator. We are grateful for her presence and her leadership.

Clergy Convocation 2017

Thursday, November 2 | 8 a.m. – 2 p.m.

Lisa Sharon Harper, author of The Very Good Gospel, will join us in November for the Clergy Convocation to facilitate a training that would help us consider our role as faithful citizens in today’s political climate. The training would seek to answer the following questions: How do we organize? How do we advocate for change? How do we mobilize in ways that influence public policy and address core issues constructively? How do we embody “shalom” together and make faith real in today’s world? As Christ Followers, how do we understand our call to activism now?

Free to Ride

Join us at the Richmond premiere of “Free to Ride,” a recent documentary about the intersection of public transportation and civil rights in Dayton, Ohio. It raises key issues about the important role public transportation plays in our communities so that all have access to what they need to thrive. A discussion about the film will follow.
